About this Document

The objective of this document is to provide an overview of the reports available in CommunityWFM. Please note that many reports have multiple viewing options as well as selectable and filtering criteria. The total number of reports available is many times greater than the reports reviewed in this document.

Many reports have multiple levels, from an executive summary down to the daily details, all easily accessible with filters on the page. Most reports include a Show options panel that allows customizing the report parameters. Additionally, most reports may be exported in the form of a .csv or .xlsx file for additional manipulation. Reports with ☰ have exporting available.

Data Targets, an optional module, allows reports to be customized and scheduled for export to reporting repositories or 3rd party solutions such as payroll. Contact your account representative for more information.

Organization

This document will review each report in the Report tab, top to bottom, then will review reports located in other areas of the application.

You can run many of the same reports from the Report tab and work areas. For example, run a published forecast staffing requirements report from Report > Published forecast > Staffing requirements, or from Forecast > Published forecast > Generate forecast reports.

Overview of Report Tab

Access many frequently used reports from a central location—the Report tab.

Published schedule

Use the published schedule reports to see published schedules for a date range and activity. At the Enterprise Model level you can see your daily coverage by day and interval to see if you have enough staff to meet your service level, and even launch automated schedule adjustment plans (ASAPs). At all levels you can make edits to the published schedule).

Schedule details

View schedules for the Enterprise Model, a supervisor tree, or a custom user group.

Use the Options panel to select the date range and sorting type, with options to suppress or show agents with no schedule, include the event name in the interval display, and whether to enable notifications if you make changes to the published schedule.

Schedule analysis

Schedule analysis includes four options:

1. Schedule analysis details

Filter for executive summary, contact volume, AHT, staffing, or service estimate. View data for each day in 15-minute intervals.

2. Schedule analysis weekly view

View a table with staffing requirements information in 15-minute intervals and columns for each day. This report is helpful for viewing a full week in one view.

Shrinkage report

Use the published schedule shrinkage reports to analyze, forecast with, and report on discretionary and non-discretionary shrinkage. Shows a summary of shrinkage data for a selected date range. Options include date charts, interval charts, day charts, or day of the week charts, then use the filters to refine the report.

Day of the week by interval only.

Published event summary

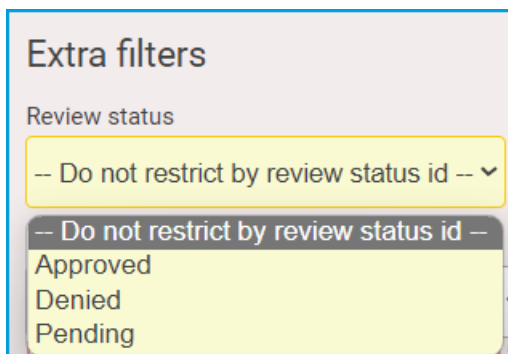

The published event summary report includes a wealth of information and includes many filtering options. If selecting a date range of fewer than 90 days, details are available. When sorted for details, this is where you can approve, deny, revalidate, or remove time off requests. The Options panel allows filtering by date, event type, PTO classification, participant, or showing all.

Event type filters allow selecting specific events or restricting to PTO events.

You can further refine the report for only approved, denied, or pending events.

When viewing event details (Show event details filter), you can delete, approve, deny, or validate future time off requests in the report. You cannot delete or edit past events here.

Intraday analysis

These reports include the intraday performance monitor and schedule analytics. These reports let you know how your day is going, if your forecast is accurate, and whether you have the appropriate number of staff for the day.

Intraday performance monitor

The intraday performance monitor allows you to see the forecasted, actual, and projected staffing requirements. Run this report on a working forecast or a published forecast.

The top of the report includes a summary and graph with filtering options for contact volume, AHT, staffing, and service. It shows today's past performance and projections for the remainder of the day and allows seeing the forecasted, actual, and projected staffing requirements.

Scroll down to the table to see each interval forecasted vs actuals, and the re-projected contacts, based on the actuals for the day.

Agent / Activity cross training and reports

The following reports provide information useful in determining the degree of cross-training among the people in your center.

Customize the forecast participant list

Create a list of forecast participants to tailor the cross-training to the requirements of your particular simulation. If you do not use a participant list, the application will use the agent population instead.

Review the agent cross-training clusters

Review the clusters generated by the clustering algorithm. This will assist in identifying your overall cross-training factor and provide insight into your center's cross training capabilities.

Review the agent cross-training matrix

Review all the agents in your center, and their individual activity assignments. This provides the basis for the forecasting clusters as well as the overall activity assignments of your agents.

The agent cross-training matrix returns a list of all agents and their activity assignments.

Where to find frequently requested reports

Where can I view a staffing requirements forecast?

There are three places where you can view a forecast for staffing requirements: in a working forecast, the published forecast, and the intraday performance monitor.

Where can I unpublish a schedule?

Schedule > Published schedule > expand Utility Schedule Reports in the navigation pane > select Published schedule audit report.

Where can I find a report of how my day is going?

Report > Intraday analysis > Intraday report monitor! Scroll down to see the day by 15-minute intervals, with projections for the rest of the day.

I need to review and approve/deny time off requests. Where is the best place?

Plan > All things time off > Time off reports then select Show event details tab. This report includes only time off events (occur off-site, not in queue, require supervisor approval) and is sorted in ascending event date order. The Created on column lets you know who made the request first for a given day.

I have people who want a printed copy of the schedule. Where is the best place to do this?

Schedule > Published schedule includes a section for Printer-friendly Schedule Reports. Schedule summary and schedule details options are available in Report > Published Schedule.

Agents have access to similar reports in Report > Published schedule.

Where can I see my shrinkage?

Report > Published schedule > Shrinkage report returns a shrinkage summary report. Select an activity, date range, then use the Chart display Options to view the data in different ways.

To view your forecasted shrinkage, navigate to Forecast > Published forecast > Generate forecast reports > Shrinkage percentages. This will include data only if you make changes to the shrinkage percentages section in a working forecast and then publish the forecast.
